

Dino says 'watch' it!

Dino Morea

Dino Morea was in a 'watch'ful mood at this do recently. And why not! After all, the actor was at Atria Mall, Worli to inaugurate Bezel, a multi-brand lifestyle watch store from Gitanjali Lifestyle. Accompanying him was the lovely Tarina Patel who was present at the 900 sq ft store, with its Italian style décor.

At the inauguration, Chronotech also announced the brand's association with Dino as its new brand ambassador as the star unveiled the new Prism collection from Chornotech. Rahul Vira, Head, Timepieces, Gitanjali, said, "We see an immense potential in the fashion and luxury watch market in India, and are pleased to offer today's modern with-it consumer a range of unique Italian, French and Swiss brands to suit the varied needs of his/her lifestyle." Bezel offers consumers an impressive choice from a wide range of time wear collections that combine technical precision with high fashion. In the next five years, Gitanjali Lifestyle aims at opening 60 stores across the country.

FIT & FAN!

Salma's fitness secret and a secret fan revealed
Salma's secret to fabulous figure

Hollywood star Salma Hayek said that she eats ants, worms and grasshoppers, as she shared her odd tastes with David Letterman, a US talk show host. "These little ants fried are amazing - with a little guacamole. And the worms. There are many different recipes for those. The little grasshoppers have a smoky flavour to them. It's the way they cook them, and it's really good," Hayek said. At the amazement of all, Hayek insisted that everyone should try the delicious creepy crawlies. "We eat bugs - and we have many recipes for some of them," Hayek said. The actress, who was earlier suffering from dyslexia, also confessed that her English speaking skills have weakened after her marriage to French fashion tycoon Francois-Henri Pinault, a website reported. On being corrected by Letterman after she mixed up the words "delicacies" and "delicatessens", Hayek said, "Yeah, sorry. My French is getting a little better, but my English is getting a lot worse."

I'm Salma's fan: Sandler

Actor Adam Sandler says he always wanted to work with Salma Hayek and that teaming up with the Mexican actress in the upcoming comedy Grown Ups was a dream come true. "We talked about doing a movie for a long time. I'm a huge fan of hers. She was almost in You Don't Mess With The Zohan and a bunch of my movies. But it didn't time out right," a website quoted Sandler as saying. "This one timed out great. It was fun being married to Salma (in the movie). She's a great girl," he added.

Colours of life

Friday saw the opening of an art exhibition that was a confluence of ideas, mediums, narratives and most importantly it showed the will to create and understand. Called the 'Eclectic Dialogues', the exhibition has artists like Jogen Chowdhury, Jitendra Singh Baoni, Seema Kohli, Nityanand Ojha, Jagannath Paul and Santosh C H showcasing their cases. The evening saw noted danseuse Mallika Sarabhai as the chief guest. Well-known personalities from the city like Abhay Mangaldas, Shaan Zaveri and Radhika Jaykrishna were present on the occasion. The brilliant hues of the canvas and the sculptures were a visual delight.
